

IndigenEYEZ Train the Trainers Summer 2020

Who is this training for?

- For university students running summer youth programs
- For staff and community members delivering youth programs, land-based activities, and camps

What is its purpose?

- Build the youth engagement skills of frontline workers
- Equip communities to deliver empowering youth and family programs

Thursday, July 2 to Saturday, July 4

Shatford Centre, Penticton 9:30 am - 4:00 pm

Thursday, July 16 to Saturday, July 18

Held outdoors on unceded Syilx territory
Land-based practicum where participants can include youth from their communities

Offered in partnership with
Okanagan College (certification may be available)

We believe...

Our children and youth are at the center of our communities. Everything is interconnected (snaqsilx^w) and healing has a ripple effect. When we all come together and heal fragmented relationships across communities, we heal our children and youth.

IndigenEYEZ

Questions? For more information contact inspire@IndigenEYEZ.com

k^wu naqscinm

Lifting up our emerging leaders to speak with one voice

What skills will I learn from this training?

- How to speak in a group
- How to set clear boundaries
- How to deal with “difficult” youth & their parents
- Ways to apply a trauma-informed lens
- Program ideas for land connection
- Safety on the land
- How to get youth to be more active
- Fun activities with an Indigenous focus

- Share tools to rebuild the fabric of our communities •
 - Breathe life back into our Indigeneity •
- Rekindle traditional values of love, kindness, respect, and honor •

“Kids learn to be Sqilx and [get] the skills and knowledge they need through learning and teaching relationships that are caring, nurturing, and long-term.” - Dr. Bill Cohen (Okanagan Nation)