Land as Teacher

Climate justice is returning to the land
Climate justice is returning to one another

We all have a responsibility to care for the lands, waters, and communities that support us. As the climate changes, adaptation and innovation become critical.

Climate change can feel overwhelming. We hear terms like “climate justice” in a settler context, but what does this mean for Indigenous peoples? We have collaborated with UBCO’s FEELed Lab and Principal’s Research Chair in Community, Justice and Sustainability to bring our strengths forward.

Our captikwł (stories) teach that change is inevitable and necessary, requiring a balanced and connected community.

Earth Sense is a hybrid training program for anyone wanting tools and skills to mobilize land-based opportunities to build community. Join Earth Sense to start this important contemplation and experience creative activities you can adapt to your community.

When we meet with our People on the land, the outcomes are immeasurable. Let’s tap into the (re)generative power of the land as teacher.

Earth Sense will begin and end by coming together on the land. In between our in-person gatherings, participants will join 6 online modules.
